FOOD CONSERVATION MEETING MONDAY

There will be a Food Conservation meeting in Bethel, Monday, August 17. This meeting will be conducted by Mrs. Doris McCrea, former 4-H Club Agent, at 1.30 in the afternoon at the American Legion Rooms. The subject matter will include everything in the line of food conservation; canning with the pressure cooker and hot water bath; canning of greens, tomatoes, berries with little sugar; home storage of vegetables, salting, krauting, and home drying.

RAGWEED ELIMINATION URGED THIS MONTH

Dr. Roscoe L. Mitchell, Director of the State Bureau of Health, is appealing to the citizens of Maine to make a concerted effort to rid the state of ragweed during the early part of August. Pointing to the fact that August is the month during which ragweed pollination takes place, he urged property owners to destroy all ragweed growing on their premises. Dr. Mitchell said that destruction of these plants would aid materially in decreasing the attacks of hay fever suffered by those who are sensitized by these wind-blown pollens. It is estimated, he added, that from 80 to 90 per cent of all hay fever victims suffer autumnal hay fever from this source.

Miss Sylvia Bird returned Monday from the C. M. G. Hospital. Rev. Herbert T. Wallace is the speaker this evening at the meeting of the Rotary Club of Gorham, N. H.

LOCAL FUNDS ASKED FOR SALVATION ARMY

The Salvation Army's Annual Appeal for funds in Bethel and several nearby towns is now under way and letters have been mailed to many friends of this organization in this vicinity. The local appeal is headed by Carl L. Brown as chairman. Fred B. Merrill will act as treasurer and the following citizens are serving as committee members: Harold Chamberlin, Philip Chapman, Dr. S. S. Greenleaf, Mrs. Elizabeth Knapp, H. Kirke Stowell, George N. Thompson, and H. D. Thurston. A quota of $800 has been set as the objective of the campaign.

This Annual Campaign now in progress is distinctly separate from the campaigns being conducted by the U. S. O. of which The Salvation Army is a member agency. U. S. O. funds meet only the expenses incurred at the U. S. O. units located adjacent to the larger military camps throughout the country. They do not carry the entire financial load of Salvation Army war work, for The Salvation Army is already serving on war fronts as yet unreached by the U. S. O. The many hospitals and institutions of The Salvation Army which are operated by public subscriptions are feeling the impact of war which always causes a lowering of moral standards in some brackets. Never before have The Salvation Army Maternity Hospitals for unmarried mothers been so crowded as since the attack on Pearl Harbor.

Mrs. Glen Meserve and son, Charles, of Roxbury, Mass., are visiting Mrs. Meserve's mother, Mrs. Sadie Allen, this week.

Mrs. Ralph Young, Mrs. Tena Thurston, Mrs. Wade Thurston and Mrs. Mary Sweeney are spending a few days at Young's camp at Howard's Pond.

Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Farvell of North Tewksbury, Mass., announce the engagement of their daughter, Gene, to C. Gerald Stalling of Lowell, Mass. No definite plans are made for the wedding. Miss Farwell is the granddaughter of Mrs. Addie Farwell of Bethel and has visited here several times.

not require rationing at present. The Office said traveling salesmen will not be permitted more than a B ration book in addition to their A books.

Army

The Army announced formation of two completely airborne divisions, consisting of about 8,000 men each, to be stationed initially at Camp Claiborne, La. The War Department said more than 7,000 volunteer Officer Candidates (men classified at 3-A who volunteer for officer training) have been inducted into service. The Department said in a short time it will place orders for large quantities of wool cloth which will call for most of the domestic wool clip now available.

A WEEK of The WAR

Admiral William D. Leahy, the President's Chief of Staff, in a radio broadcast Aug. 9 marking the first anniversary of the Atlantic Charter, said "This war will probably be long. It will be the toughest, hardest, most merciless war we have ever fought. It calls for the united power of every American, in uniform and out of uniform, on the firing line and on the production line. . . I have no doubt of America's decision."

President Roosevelt, in a message read on the broadcast, said "great progress" has been made in the battle of production, but "in terms of what will be required to defeat our enemies we have only just begun to get into our stride."

Elmer Davis, Director of the Office of War Information, said "America's conversion job has largely been completed; the emphasis now must be transferred from finished goods to the raw materials from which they are made. 'We will get them—by full use of existing facilities, and by tapping new, or marginal, or abandoned sources of supply. We will develop new processes, eliminate waste, and work for full salvage by every citizen,' Mr. Davis said.

Vice Chairman Batt of the War Production Board, on the same radio program, said the public must see to it that all waste and scrap metal is collected and "sent to the mills—quickly. There is plenty of iron and steel scrap. . . that must get back to the furnaces if the steel needed for the war is to be produced. You and I can help by keeping our eyes open."

In a general review of the war situation, the Office of War Information said Japan production of military planes fell slightly behind schedule, despite the fact that the U. S. made more planes than any other country in the world. The same was true of tanks, of most types of artillery, and of Naval vessels, the OWI said. Because of enemy submarine activity, the Office said, it probably will be well into 1943 before we equal merchant shipping as of Dec. 7, 1941.

The War Front

The Navy announced "United States naval and other forces have attacked enemy installations in the southeast part of the Solomon Islands in force and the attacks are continuing." Later the Navy said "Considerable enemy resistance has been encountered and it is still too early to announce results or to estimate either our own or enemy losses."

Gen. MacArthur's headquarters in Australia reported Aug. 10 that Allied planes from Australia were maintaining a 24-hour-a-day offensive over the entire invasion zone in support of the attack against the Solomon Islands. The Navy also reported U. S. Naval forces "bombed enemy ships and shore establishments continuously in the Aleutians, simultaneously with the beginning of the attack on the Solomon Islands."

Maj. Gen. Clark, Commanding General of U. S. Ground Forces in Britain, said the U. S. Army is sending "picked combat divisions" to Britain and "the sooner a second front could be opened the better." He said "obviously we are not here to sit on the defensive."

The Pacific Coast, from the Canadian to the Mexican borders, was ordered dimmed out beginning Aug. 20 and for the duration by Western Defense Commander Dewitt as a precaution against enemy attack at sea and on the shore.

The Navy announced the torpedoing of 14 additional United Nations vessels.

Sabotage and Subversive Activities

The White House announced six of the eight Nazi saboteurs landed in this country by submarine were executed in the District of Columbia jail Aug. 8. The sentences of the other two were commuted by the President to life and to 30 years imprisonment, "because of their assistance to the Government of the United States in the apprehension and conviction of the others."

The First Ground Air Support Command in New York City announced the discovery by Army fliers of ingeniously contrived markers, aimed directly at Eastern airfields and airplane factories. The markers, invisible from the ground, were eradicated and the danger to the war bases averted, the announcement said. "Proper action" was taken against the persons who built the markers.

Transportation

The WPB approved the proposal of Henry J. Kaiser, shipbuilder, to construct 500 70-ton cargo-carrying planes, patterned after the flying boat "Mars" built for the Navy.

The program is contingent, however, "upon our being able to do it without interfering with the present combat plane program," WPB Chairman Nelson said. Army Air Forces Commander Arnold said at present 21 percent of all Army Air Forces multi-engined plane production is being devoted to transport planes, and the program calls for this production to be raised to 30 percent in 1943.

Rationing

President Roosevelt set up a three-man committee, headed by Bernard M. Baruch, to study the entire synthetic rubber program. The President said the committee's findings will "form a basis for future action not only with respect to synthetic rubber, but also such matters as nationwide gas rationing and motor transportation." The OPA said it is planning a universal ration book to be put into the hands of every American, as part of its machinery to handle rationing of many commodities which will be required for the war effort.

ECONOMIC HIGHLIGHTS

National and International Problems Inseparable from Local Welfare

There is nothing basically new in the idea of using cargo airplanes to supplant waterborne transport. It has long been urged by such authorities on the strength and adaptability of airpower as Major de Seversky. And Hitler himself has made excellent use of the cargo plane. In the Crete campaign, for instance, the British had superiority in seapower. But the Germans took to the air, and used their air freighters to bring in men, materials and supplies. The result was that British sea superiority proved to be of almost no importance. The British men-of-war dominated the sea lanes—but they could do nothing to the Nazi air transports which flew safely by overhead.

What is new is the magnitude of the plan recently proposed by Henry J. Kaiser, and supported by a number of the principal builders of aircraft. The German planes so far used have been relatively small—Mr. Kaiser envisages air freighters of 200 to 500 tons. The German planes, due to the Reich's geographical position, have not had to have any great range. Mr. Kaiser envisages freighters which can cross the sea and still have capacity for tremendous amounts of cargo. The German planes, it is believed were and are being produced slowly and in relatively small numbers—Mr. Kaiser talks of building planes of vast size under a mass-production system which will turn them out almost as quickly as Detroit assembly lines used to turn out motor cars.

No one can deny that the cargo plane idea, if it is workable, will prove at least a partial solution to the most difficult problem the United Nations face. So far as production for war is concerned, this country has generally realized the "arsenal of democracy" goal laid down by the President. But getting that production to the far-flung battlefronts of this global war is a very different matter. The hard truth is that the Axis is sinking more ships than the United Nations can replace—and it is sinking them with an enormous amount of vital supplies. The Navy has not been able to solve the problem. And some authorities are convinced that it is basically insoluble—that terrible losses will continue and perhaps mount, unless and until the freighters leave the water and take to the skies.

Even the biggest cargo planes so far built cannot carry a great deal in one trip. But, over a period of time, their speed will make up for that lack. It is said, for instance, that 40 flying boats of the 70-ton size are equal to a 10,000 ton Liberty ship in carrying capacity. An ordinary freighter can make only three round trips to and from Australia in the course of a year—and a cargo plane can make 20. A cargo plane might make 70 or more round trips to England carrying freight and troops to England.

Skeptics have said that Mr. Kaiser's plan is impractical and visionary—that it is impossible to build cargo planes on a mass production basis in shipyards. But Mr. Kaiser and other builders have confounded skeptics before this on many occasions. According to him, both his own yards and others of a similar type are adequately equipped to build the planes. He has said also that a plant could be built quickly to supply necessary materials without distracting from other essential phases of the war effort. These planes would require, by comparison with ships, a fairly small amount of steel—and steel is one of the major bottlenecks of the present time. The steel mills have done a fine job in stepping up capacity to the utmost—but they simply haven't been able to turn out enough.

So far as the practicality of the planes themselves is concerned, there seems to be little question. The gigantic flying boat "Mars," built as an experiment by the Glenn Martin Company, has proved completely successful in its trials. The Army's B-19, largest land plane ever built, has also proved its worth. And far bigger planes still are now on the drawing boards of the designers.

The advocates of cargo planes also say that they would be extremely difficult to intercept and destroy. Their range and speed would be so great that they could constantly change their routes. When approaching their destinations, Allied fighters could be sent out to screen them and bring them in. Due to the time element alone, merchant ships must closely follow certain definite and prescribed routes—and they must, at the end of their journey, converge on ports which are known to the enemy. The planes, in brief, must be infinitely more flexible.

Steps are being taken to get the Kaiser program started. The skeptics are waiting and watching with fingers crossed—while the plan's backers seem to have no doubts at all. Inside a year, the country should know which side is right.

The recent parade of crack Nazi divisions in Paris was obviously designed for propaganda purposes both at home and abroad. In effect Hitler told the world that he was ready to resist a United Nations' invasion of the German-held continent of Europe.

In the meantime, the English seem to be carrying out their big scale air raids on German industrial areas as often as they can. The English have a great many first-class bombers—but they lack fuel and other supplies. That is probably the reason for the delays between raids.

Bomb 'em with JUNK

Let's blast Japan—and Germany—and Italy—with the chain lightning of destruction that can be built from the scrap in our cellars, attics and garages, on our farms and in our places of business.

Scrap iron and steel, other metals, rubber and waste materials. It will all be used to make tanks, ships, planes and the fighting weapons our boys must have. It is needed at once.

Sell it to a Junk dealer—give it to a charity or collection agency—take it yourself to the nearest collection point—or consult the Local Salvage Committee... If you live on a farm, or I have found no means of disposing of your junk, get in touch with the County War Board or your farm implement dealer.

Throw YOUR scrap into the fight!

It may be caused by disorder of kidney function that permits poisonous waste to accumulate. For truly many people feel tired, weak and miserable when the kidneys fail to remove excess acids and other waste matter from the blood. You may suffer sagging backache, rheumatic pains, headaches, dizziness, getting up nights, leg pains, swelling, sometimes frequent and scanty urination with smarting and burning in another sign that something is wrong with the kidneys or bladder. There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. It is better to rely on a medicine that has won countrywide approval than on something less favorably known. MAN...the NEWCOMER

"Fiddlesticks," said Great Aunt Matilda, throwing down the morning paper. "All this talk about how wonderful women are to come into industry makes me tired. Women have been in industry since the dawn of time. It's the man who's the newcomer!"

"But, Aunt Matilda," I began in surprise.

She didn't wait for me to finish but continued: "Who do you think made the first cloth and preserved the first food? Men? I should say not! They were out hunting and fishing. It was the women folks who gathered and preserved the fresh fruits, nuts and roots of the forest. It was the women who salted down the first meat. It was women, too, you remember, who spun the yarn and then wove it into cloth and finally made it into garments for all the family."

"But when machines were invented and most of this work was taken out of the home to be done in the factory..." I began again.

"Women were still the dominating factor. It was the women who used the majority of the products turned out by those factories and so their judgment determined what products should persist and what what ones should be discarded."

"So you think women are just getting back to one of their original jobs when they go to work in plants and factories today?"

"Certainly! Women are, by their very nature, creators and they take to modern machine work just as easily as they did to the hand production of a century and a half ago."

"But they used to do this productive work in the peace and quiet of their homes," I reminded her.

"Peace and quiet!" she exclaimed. "With a half dozen or more children playing around one small over-crowded room and the dinner cooking in pots hung in the fireplace, and the washing to do by hand with home-made soap!"

"Um..." I replied. "I see what you mean...Then you think the women of today who keep their own houses and do their own jobs at the factories actually have an easier time than our grandmothers who ran their own one-woman factories at home?"

"I certainly do. Look at the array of machines modern industry has given her to help with her housework...and as for the factory, her hours are limited, and the pay is sure and good. In the old days she might produce for the whole family but she had to ask her husband for every cent she spent!"

"No," she said, picking up the paper, "women will be making things as long as the world goes on, and modern machines have done more for each one of us than they have for any man on the face of this troubled globe!"

American poultry flocks turned out nearly 2½ billion dozen eggs during the first 5 months of 1942. This was more than half the goal set for the entire year. Egg-drying plants in this country can now turn out 30 times as many dried eggs as could be dried a year ago. Millions of these eggs are now going to the British in 5-ounce packages of dried whole-egg powder. Present ration is one package a month for a family of three, plus one shell egg a person each month during the winter, and four each summer month.

TO HELP GIVE YOUR CAR

5. THE BODY

Care of the finish and appearance of any car pays dividends in resale value, motoring pleasure and safety. Cleanliness is the keynote in body maintenance, but lubrication, again, is of prime importance. Today, most cars have all steel bodies, which have eliminated many of the problems confronting the owners of cars with wooden frames, canvas tops. However, squeaks and rattles will develop unless proper attention is given to body bolts and parts which loosen due to vibration.

FACTS

A SMALL SCRATCH may cause the metal to rust, weakening the part so that it will have to be replaced.

IT IS DANGEROUS to operate a car with faulty windshield wipers and lights or with vision impaired by windshield stickers.

RUBBER FLOOR MATS are not replaceable because of the rubber shortage. Keep them free of dirt and dust, which are impossible to remove when ground in by your feet.

SERVICING

Have the car body waxed regularly. It will save the finish. Less frequent washings will be necessary.

Have the windshield wipers tested regularly; replace blades when necessary.

Have the lights tested and adjusted regularly. Many night accidents are due to faulty headlights.

This is the fifth in a series of articles on the care of your car.

The SNAPSHOT GUILD

LANDSCAPE PHOTOGRAPHY

It pays to include objects, such as these trees, in the foreground of your landscape pictures.

LANDSCAPES always have been—and probably always will be—popular picture subjects. But there's a technique to making good landscapes, and the photographer who wants to consistently produce first rate results will do well to keep it in mind.

The technique is based principally upon a theory of selection. Most beginners try to include too much in each picture. Therefore, the first rule for successful landscape photography is to select your subject carefully. Aim for simplicity in arrangement and composition; avoid overcrowding. Beware of extremely general scenes. Don't always try to picture a whole valley or mountain range with one snapshot. A half dozen pictures, each showing one interesting portion of the panorama, will result in much more enjoyable and appealing snapshots.

Second, learn to avoid subjects which appear to be divided into two equal parts. For example, sometimes a tree will be standing in such a position that it seems to be cutting the picture in half. In another case, the horizon line may run directly across the center of the snapshot. The exact center of any picture is usually its weakest spot so don't concentrate too much attention there.

Technically, the secret of good landscape pictures lies in straightforward photo technique. However, here are a few tips. Look for side-light scenes. On most outdoor shots use a medium yellow filter; it will help you get cloud effects. And finally, to add depth to your picture, include some object such as a tree, a house, a person, or an animal in the foreground. Notice how the trees in the foreground add depth to our illustration. This picture, incidentally, illustrates the type of landscape effects you can get at the sunset hour.

But most important of all, just take the time, and devote some thought to working out your landscape pictures. You'll be well repaid with higher quality results.

SUPPLIES MUST GO THRU is the watchword of the drivers bringing up food, water and ammunition for the troops in the desert battlelines. Enormous convoys of vehicles are needed for the job and they are visible for miles from the air, but the British drivers proceed regardless of bombing. This picture gives a driver's-eye view of the bombing of a convoy. One bomb has just burst ahead and others are whistling down behind and at the sides. If the driver stops for shelter, his truck becomes an easier target and the supplies are delayed. If not destroyed, so, he zig-zags and keeps right on.

★ Charter for a Free World ★

The Atlantic Charter

The President of the United States and the Prime Minister, Mr. Churchill, representing His Majesty's Government in the United Kingdom, have met at sea.

The President and the Prime Minister have had several conferences. They have considered the dangers to world civilization arising from the policies of military domination by conquest upon which the Hitlerite government of Germany and other governments associated therewith have embarked, and have made clear the steps which their countries are respectively taking for their safety in the face of these dangers.

They have agreed on the following Declaration:

The President of the United States of America and the Prime Minister, Mr. Churchill, representing His Majesty's Government in the United Kingdom, being met together, deem it right to make known certain common principles in the national policies of their respective countries on which they base their hopes for a better future for the world.

FIRST, Their countries seek no aggrandizement, territorial or other;

SECOND, They desire to see no territorial changes that do not accord with the freely expressed wishes of the peoples concerned;

THIRD, They respect the right of all peoples to choose the form of government under which they will live; and they wish to see secured to them full freedom of expression, opinion and action within their own boundaries, and self-government restored to those who have been forcibly deprived of them;

FOURTH, They will endeavor with due respect for their existing obligations, to further the enjoyment by all States, great or small, victor or vanquished, of access, on equal terms, to the trade and to the raw materials of the world which are needed for their economic prosperity;

FIFTH, They desire to bring about the fullest collaboration between all nations in the economic field with the object of securing, for all, improved labor standards, economic advancement and social security;

SIXTH, After the final destruction of the Nazi tyranny, they hope to see established a peace which will afford to all nations the means of dwelling in safety within their own boundaries, and which will afford assurance that all the men in all the lands may live out their lives in freedom from fear and want;

SEVENTH, Such a peace should enable all men to traverse the high seas and oceans without hindrance;

EIGHTH, They believe all of the nations of the world, for realistic as well as spiritual reasons, must come to the abandonment of the use of force. Since no future peace can be maintained if land, sea or air armaments continue to be employed by nations which threaten, or may threaten, aggression outside of their frontiers, they believe, pending the establishment of a wider and permanent system of general security, that the disarmament of such nations is essential. They will likewise aid and encourage all other practicable measures which will lighten for peace-loving peoples the crushing burden of armaments.

FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT

to the nations bordering the Atlantic Ocean. On January 2nd of this year 26 nations signed a declaration subscribing to the Charter and pledging themselves to joint war against the aggressors. The Charter today applies just as much to the people of Australia and the grim fighting millions of China as it does to those of Great Britain. It is the charter of Russia's Red Army and the gallant Chetniks of the Yugoslav mountains as well as the boys in the U. S. armed forces. In straightforward, simple language it defines the fundamental rights and the basic beliefs for which the United Nations are fighting and which the Axis has attacked. In the year that will follow a United Nations victory, August 14th, Charter Day, may well become a world-wide holiday—an international independence day.

When Mr. Churchill and Prime Minister Churchill met on the 14th of August, 1941, aboard a battleship somewhere in the Atlantic, they met to make history. In the one year since the Atlantic Charter was signed, it has taken its place among the great documents of human freedom beside Magna Carta and the Declaration of Independence. In many ways the Atlantic Charter is the greatest of these declarations of men's rights, for it does not apply simply to one nation or a small group of nations. The Charter began as an agreement between Britain and the United States, but today it stands as the fundamental statement of purpose for every one of the twenty-eight democratic nations which are aligned together in the fight against the Axis.

The Atlantic Charter is not, as some people think, limited

The real prosperity of any community is dependent largely on the loyalty of its people to that community's interests. In its ideal form all would always do all they could to promote the interest of their own locality.

The merchants of any center are identified especially with the interests of those living in their localities and therefore you will find those most interested telling of their wares and services in their home newspapers.

Thus it is to the advantage of every Citizen reader to do business with our advertisers. You will find them sincerely interested in the welfare of their customers, and often able to advise regarding suitable merchandise and to secure desired goods which may be out of stock.

You will help yourself, your merchant, and the Citizen by patronizing the advertisers in these columns.

Our Work Must Satisfy

Business and social stationery, or any form of printed matter, is an accurate reflection of the taste and standing of any person or company. Thus it behooves one to see that all their needs in this line are cared for correctly.

In many cases good printing costs but little if any more than slipshod work. Workmanship, choice of paper and typography are matters which depend very much upon experience, and this experience often leads to economies of production which may result in lower prices for superior results.

In any case, why not consult us first?
